

Blessed Resurrection!

Spring 2020

Dear Friend:

Have you ever been caught in a large traffic jam with a line of cars for miles ahead? Nothing is moving except your patience. Then traffic is directed to the EDR and the same line of cars is travelling down a very narrow road or abandoned nature trail. Now it's follow-the-leader; one vehicle leading until each chooses their own direction. You're eventually placing the co-ordinates into your GPS. "Two miles, turn left." Now you are back on your journey. I'm sure you've felt this same nail-biting familiarity on your journey.

Your consistent prayer and financial support allow me to share these travel insights. Thank YOU for investing in the souls of men and women in trucking! Please GO WITH US!

In the final chapters of Matthew, the disciples must have been filled with mixed emotions during Christ's arrest, journey to the cross, crucifixion, resurrection and final commission. The disciples' patience must have been challenged during the traffic jam of time, detoured into the unknown. How could they abuse the Son of God? Who will protect Him? Finally, on the narrow road the Resurrected Christ appears, releasing a world shackled with sin. "Go ye therefore and make disciples."

Wayne was a slim man in stature and about 40 years of age. Quiet and very reserved. He sat in the corner chair in the drivers' room and said nothing. After the second day I sat down beside him and introduced myself. His soft, gentle response was, "Just waiting for a ride home. I don't drive unsafe trucks." His truck had been put out of service at the inspection station. Later that day I sat down beside him again. "Guess I'll need a ride home," he said as he raised his head. I found a driver to help Wayne on his trip home. For the next 3 days Wayne would get a ride toward home, but ended up back at the truck stop. On the 4th day, I offered to give Wayne a ride home and he graciously accepted. En route, Wayne began to share his life story of growing up in a Christian home, but denying the faith. "My mother always said, 'Wayne, the Lord will get your attention.'" Not knowing what to say, I continued to drive. Finally, we pulled over and during the next half hour Wayne's questions were answered, while we were on the side of the highway. Wayne committed his life to Christ. Delivering Wayne to his home I said, "Wayne, make sure you tell your mother what you have done." He replied, "Don, I should have talked to you the first time. It would have saved return trips to the truck stop."

Wayne is part of the kingdom of God now because YOU cared enough to invest in the Kingdom. Thank YOU for your support. GO BEFORE US!
